A SURPRISING CASE.

Mr. Alex. W. Harris, a prominent lawyer at No. 1005 G st. n. w., Washington, D. C., under date of Jan. 11th, 1890, wrote to the A. S. C. Chemical Co., Richmond, Va., giving the history of a case of skin eruption of 20 years' standing, the result of malignant blood disease. (At this time Mr. Harris had been unable to walk for six months.) In reply he was directed to use A. B. C. Alterative with the assurance that he would be cured. March 1st, 1890, Mr. Harris again wrote the A. B. C. Chemical Co. in the following words: "The improvement in my case so far is almost miraculous. I am really getting well, and can walk as well as I ever could, and my general health was never better. I shall write you from time to time. Meantime you can refer any one to me you desire, and I shall certainly tell them that the A. B. C. Alterative has done me more good in two months than has 20 years' experience with various eminent physicians and all other remedies tried." Under date of April 7th, 1890, Mr. Harris wrote, "I am entirely well."

A Stallion Fight.

Jack Collins of Bath, N. Y., has two blooded stallions, one a bay named Bonanza and a large gray called Butterfly. On Saturday evening Bonanza escaped from his barn and started on a trot through the streets. Jimmy, the twelve-year-old brother of Collins, mounted the gray stallion and started in pursuit of the bay. He overtook the latter after a long chase, and when the bay saw that he was to be caught he turned suddenly and sprang upon the gray. He seized the latter in the fleshy part of the neck with his teeth. The gray leaped to one side, throwing his rider twenty feet and over a fence. The boy got to his feet quickly, and although he was lamed by his terrible fall, and the stallions were rearing and plunging in fierce combat, he succeeded in remounting the gray. His mother had witnessed his fall, and fainting away. With the but of a heavy riding whip the courageous boy showed several blows on the head of the bay stallion, which had again fastened his teeth in the gray's neck. A number of men had gathered around, but were afraid to interfere, although the great peril of the Collihue boy was apparent to all. The bay stallion paid no attention to the blows of the whip, and held to the gray by his teeth with the tenacity of a bulldog. The gray plunged and reared with pain, and finally threw his rider again. The boy fell to the ground between the two struggling horses, and the spectators turned their heads. It did not seem possible that the plucky little fellow could possibly escape being trampled to death beneath the feet of the stallions. With the quickness of a cat, however, he rolled to one side, and with incredible courage mounted the gray stallion again. The horses were still fighting furiously. When the boy mounted his horse the second time two men in the crowd plucked up courage enough to seize clubs and make an effort to separate the stallions. They succeeded in doing so. The boy then turned the gray stallion and galloped toward home. But the bay stallion was still not inclined to give up the fight, and started in pursuit, his ears thrown back, his mouth wide open, and foam flying in showers from his mouth. The gray's rider lashed him to greater speed, but the bay would have overtaken them had he not stumbled and fallen when he was but a few feet in the rear. The bay quickly regained his feet, but it was then too late. The boy had got the gray into the barn. The infuriated bay was finally secured and locked in his stall, but he kicked and plunged about for half an hour or more before his fury was spent. The plucky boy was badly bruised, but not seriously hurt. The gray stallion was torn severely in the neck. The bay escaped without a scratch. The boy's mother remained unconquered for a long time, and is seriously ill with nervous prostration.

APPLES WILL BE SCARCE.—This week's New England Homestead says: Apples will be scarcer and more costly this season than for many a year. There is but half a crop of winter fruit in the famous Annapolis Valley, of Nova Scotia, and a still greater reduction in the apple belt of Southern and Western Ontario and Michigan along the lakes. In Maine and limited sections of Vermont and New Hampshire, there is a fair yield of apples, being the best in Maine. Throughout Southern New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the interior states generally, the promise of winter fruit is worse than ever before known. The apple belt of Western New York, along Lakes Ontario and Erie, which in good seasons ships much more than one million barrels to New York or foreign markets, has almost no crop whatever this year.
Eastern buyers are already gobbling it up at good prices. Summer and fall apples are also short, and command good prices.
The Homestead thinks that choice western fruit, like prime Baldwin, will rule at $4 to $5 per barrel in Boston and New York within three months. Four dollars has already been bid for one lot in Addison county, Vermont, and the exports of apples from the United States and Canada of the 1890 crop will not be much over 500,000 barrels, against 700,000 barrels last year and 1,000,000 in 1888.
Peaches are a practical failure in Southern Ontario and Michigan, as well as in the Southern states and Connecticut.
Pears and plums yield unevenly, but are far below an average crop, and must command good prices.
Grapes, however, are an immense crop, saved in sections of New Jersey and the South, where the black rot is playing havoc with the fruit. The scarcity of other fruits will sustain the market for grapes.
